Dale for RNC Chairman

Actually, no, I am not interested in the job and no, I am not on anyone's short list to replace Ronna McDaniel either. In fact, there are less than a handful of people in D.C. who even know my name (thanks to Rep. Bill Posey, R-FL; Rep. Tom Kean, R-NJ; Rep. Chris Smith, R-NJ; and a few others for being the exception to the rule. I guess I could add Rep. Don Norcross, D-NJ, to that list, but only because we graduated high school together and played on the same JV soccer team. Our political views are polar opposites).

That being said, if you have Ronna's cell phone number or personal email address, I sure would appreciate you forwarding my column to her... although I doubt she'd like it. After all, no one enjoys being told that they are doing a lousy job.

For those outside the Washington Beltway or with a life aside from politics (which is the vast majority of the American people, if only we would consult them from time to time), Ronna is the current chairwoman of the Republican National Com-

The Birds and the Bees Don't Kill Their Babies

(Warning: this post deals with adult issues from an adult perspective using some adult terminology.)

Do you want to know the root cause of abortion in America? No, I'm not talking about the birds and the bees, although we will address that connection in a minute or two.

There is one primary reason why 63 million babies were aborted between 1973, when the U.S. Supreme Court handed down its convoluted and erroneous Roe v. Wade decision, and 2022, when it was finally overturned... and it can be summed up in a single word: selfishness. It is also the reason why abortion advocates are currently scrambling to collect petition signatures so they can enshrine the right to murder unborn children in state constitutions across the country.

Simply put, far too many women and far too many men want to have their cake and eat it, too. They want to be able to indulge in indiscriminate recreational sex and should an "oops" occur, they demand that a handy "remedy" be immediately available. Pull a one-nighter and get pregnant, no big deal. Your local pharmacy now carries an over-the-counter pill that can erase the effects - but not the shame or the guilt - of that night of hedonistic pleasure.

Meanwhile, men with high libidos and low morals are "all in" as far as abortion is concerned. "Just take care of it" is the short-sighted and self-serving advice they give to the mother of their preborn child. But that's what happens when your anatomy and not your brain makes the decisions for you.

The same goes for married women or women in committed relationships who, because of their career ambitions or financial situation, choose death over life when an unexpected pregnancy occurs. Unwilling to sacrifice a promotion at work, they instead sacrifice the life of their precious unborn child on the bloody altar of convenience and career advancement.

Women who are struggling to make ends meet financially often employ faulty and irrational logic, too. "It would be unfair to bring a child into the world when I can't afford to raise it," is how their twisted reasoning goes... as if killing the baby is a far more compassionate option. Do they actually hear - and believe - what they are saying?

What about adoption? Don't they realize that there are an estimated 2 million couples currently waiting to adopt in the United States? That's as many as 36 waiting families for every one child who is placed for adoption.

Do the unselfish thing and carry your mittee. During her seven years at the party's helm, the GOP has lost the House majority (2018), and both the Senate majority and the White House (2020). Republicans reclaimed the House in 2022 but posted the smallest opposition party gain in recent history during last year's midterm elections.

Aside from the fact that Ronna Romney McDaniel is also Mitt's niece - you can pick your friends, but not your family - I figure that her less-than-stellar electoral record means she could use a few suggestions from the hinterlands. And so, here goes nothing...

First and foremost, please get outside the Washington bubble for an extended period of time. No, I don't mean attend yet another champagne-swilling, country-club-hosting fundraiser in Palm Beach or Palm Springs. More like Palm Bay, a middle-class town just south of Melbourne FL, or for that matter, anywhere but the secluded high-society enclaves where the upper crust lives, works, and plays.

Talk to REAL people: the ones who shop at Walmart, follow NASCAR and the NFL, and consider Cracker Barrel and Olive Garden to be fine dining. And don't just talk but LISTEN... and learn what makes them tick. Find out over some biscuits and gravy or the never-ending pasta bowl what issues are the most important to them. After all, deep-pocketed donors can fill the RNC's coffers, but common-sense conservatives can fill the ballot boxes on election day. You simply have to decide which is the more valuable commodity.

My second suggestion is to become known as the party of the family. I can't take credit for that idea, because I stole it from Steve Doocy of Fox & Friends, but it bears repeating. Ask yourself what was the main reason for Glenn Youngkin's surprise win in the Virginia gubernatorial race in 2021? Education... and more specifically, parental rights. Ride that pony for all she's worth, Ronna, because it is your best defense against the reproductive rights radicals that are corralling the suburban white women vote.

Third - and this kills me to say as a strong pro-life advocate - find a temporary accommodation on the abortion issue until we can sway the American public to our point of view. Yes, life begins at conception and yes, abortion is murder. And yes, I gagged as I wrote the words "temporary accommodation." But apparently, a majority of Americans support limited infanticide, which tells you just how far we have fallen as a country and how far we have to go to reclaim it.

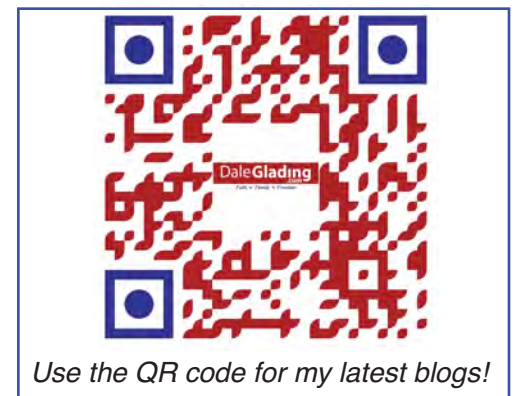

Would I love to see a federal ban on abortions? Absolutely! Is the country ready for that? Sadly, no. So, please save as many precious unborn babies as you can now by supporting a national pain-capable measure - or better yet, a human heartbeat act that would outlaw all abortions after 18 days, which is when the fetal heartbeat first appears - and pray that voters' hearts will soften and change over time. Meanwhile, continue to paint the Progressive Left as the genocidal maniacs they truly are by calling them out on partial birth abortion and other prenatal atrocities.

We are the party of life, and they are the party of death. Repeat that phrase over and over again, splash it on billboards across the country, and put it to music until people are unconsciously humming it to themselves every night as they drift off to sleep.

While you're at it, be the party that promotes adoption by proposing that the federal government cover all adoption fees and childcare expenses through age 5. I realize that that is a revolutionary - and very expensive - concept, but it would deflate the progressive argument that all Republicans care about are babies before birth but not afterwards.

Push for school choice, school vouchers, and school safety. Launch a national campaign to recruit and hire military veterans as SRO's (school resource officers). Offer to pay for the first 10,000 from the RNC's burgeoning war chest. Trust me; you can't buy better advertisement than that.

I have many more suggestions - and much more unsolicited advice - to offer you, but I'll save it for our private conversation. You have my number (actually you don't, but Bill Posey does, so just ask him).

Why Are Liberals So Self-Loathing?

If I were to list all the reasons why being a liberal is just plain lousy (if not the absolute pits), I would have to visit a paper mill to secure more stationery. Likewise, I would run out of ink or toner or whatever writing implement I was using.

Actually, if I were a true liberal, I would be writing on tree bark... with the tree's permission, of course.

Simply put, adopting a liberal mindset isn't a lot of fun. I guess that's why most libs are seemingly angry 24/7 and when you say something they disagree with, they twist their face into all sorts of strange contortions while their eyes bulge, the veins in their neck pulsate, and their complexion turns an unattractive shade of fire engine red.

And then there's the spit... or at least the more politely named "spittle" that forms and froths at the corner of their mouths. In fact, the ability to spew non-stop venom is considered a very valuable character trait in progressive circles.

But perhaps the main disadvantage of being a liberal/progressive is that the #1 prerequisite to joining Club Lib is you have to hate yourself. Seriously... I'm not kidding.

Think about it for a minute. Every liberal I know hates who they are and who they've been. If they are white (and most progressives are), they despise their skin color because to them, it represents oppression, colonialism, and a host of other repugnant racial and ethnic attributes. It doesn't matter if their ancestors fought in the Union Army to free the slaves or served as medical missionaries to indigenous people. Coming from white stock (somehow, I'm returning to my paper mill analogy) means you are inherently evil... and there is nothing you can do about it but apologize over and over again.

At least that's what we are teaching Caucasian kindergartners in schools that have adopted the CRT curriculum. Forget what Dr. King said about character - and not skin color - being the true measure of a person. White is bad, plain and simple.

So is coming from anything or anywhere but a third-world nation or an inner-city ghetto because, according to the Progressive Playbook, every person who got ahead in life did so by oppressing someone else... not by staying in school, getting a good education, and applying what they learned to land a good job.

How dare you insinuate that a good education is the secret to success, you imperialist pig! After all, everyone knows that schools are elitist and patently prejudiced because they favor students who study hard and test well over those who fall asleep in class and whose dogs eat their homework every night. And who's to say that $2 + 2 = 4$? What about the feelings of the student who thinks the correct answer is 5?

Ask any liberal you meet on the street - actually, in the subway, because most of them take public transportation or at least say they do - if American history should be taught as is, blemishes and all, or if we should eliminate everything that happened on U.S. soil before Bill Clinton or Barack Obama was elected president? According to them, our Founding Fathers were all Fascists... or worse.

Back to jobs and the urban jungle for a minute. If you manage to buy a nice house in the suburbs and drive anything but a Prius, you are single-handedly destroying the planet because your oversized carbon footprint is responsible for decimating the entire Amazon rain forest. Shame on you for living the American dream! Don't you know that we were meant to live in huts with no running water, indoor plumbing, air conditioning or refrigeration?

Of course, I am willing to bet that most progressives live in gated communities, but that's beside the point (see the Progressive Playbook, page 12, paragraph 4, where it says that the recommended pre-Industrial Revolution living standards don't apply to liberals).

If only conservatives would stop smiling so much and learn to be miserable like liberals, we might all get along better. Cut out the optimistic attitude, too, because it just makes progressives mad. After all, don't you know the world is coming to an end in the next 12 years according to their high priestess, Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez?

Oops, better make that 8 years because Saint Alex (progressives prefer nonbinary names) made her bold prediction in 2019. And strike that reference to "her," because I am pretty sure that AOC's preferred pronouns are we/they/us.

I really should stop here but, as a compulsively upbeat conservative who thinks that China is more of an existential threat than climate change, I am having entirely too much fun at the progressives' expense. So maybe we'll just pick up tomorrow where we left off today...

child to term and then, if you don't think you are capable of raising it for whatever reason, place it into the loving arms of a couple that can do that for you. They are just begging for the chance to shower your child with love.

With that much of an adoption waiting list - and free contraceptives available virtually everywhere - there is zero reason to abort a baby except for simple, unadulterated selfishness on the parts of the mother and father. No more excuses, because they just don't cut it.

The bottom line is this: If you are not ready to raise a child or to give it up for adoption, then you are not ready for sex. Period, end of story. Be a grown-up... and allow your preborn child the privilege of growing up, too.
